REPORT

SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

FELLOW CITIZENS:—While there is much in our schools to approve, there is also the plainest need of improvement in many particulars. We wish, instead of enumerating them all, to call your special attention to one or two of the most important. Nothing, in our judgment, is more imperatively demanded by the true interests of our schools, than

GREATER PERMANENCE OF TEACHERS. In the carrying out of our school system, no one thing is a greater mistake, and a cause of more loss, than the frequent change of teachers. It is the exception where the same teacher keeps a school two successive terms; while a permanent teacher year after year in a district is almost unknown. We are aware that there are difficulties in the way of securing this, owing to the fact that many teachers only teach for a few terms. But that there may be immense improvement, any one will be convinced who observes how many teachers are reported as being employed from time to time in different districts, all over town. Some of the evils of such frequent changes are these:

1. The teacher does not understand the different characters, talents, and attainments of his pupils. It requires at least one term for a teacher to thoroughly understand his scholars in these respects. Having found them out, he is prepared to classify them aright, and to give each the guidance needed; but just then the term ends, and he leaves, to begin the same process of discovery in a second district, and then to leave again for district No. 3. Here is a loss of time, money, and effort, to which it is amazing that the community are not more awake.

2. This perpetual changing encourages a critical spirit, in both parents and children. The question with each new term is, Who is to teach now? How does he compare with the last teacher? What are his peculiarities? We need not describe the evil effect of this spirit. The interest which should be directed to the real objects of the school is worse than wasted upon the peculiarities of the teacher.

3. And again, these constant changes expose the schools to greater liability of having teachers who are chosen through favoritism or family influence.

On the other hand, if a teacher is good, there are these great advantages in his being permanent:

1. He understands his pupils and the district, better than a stranger can do. He knows the abilities, scholarship, character, and temperament of each scholar. He can classify them aright, and carry them on from term to term, with no loss of time. He can encourage and reprove, as each one has need.

2. He gains the influence of friendship, which a conscientious teacher will use for the good of his pupils. If they have learned to respect and love him, he can do more to form their morals and manners aright than a stranger could accomplish.

3. A higher, better feeling is cultivated in the parents and all the people of the district in regard to the teacher. They do not expect a change for every whim, and this inclines them to be reasonable, and not to find fault for little, unimportant reasons.

4. Greater permanence would tend to raise the standard of teachers. Committees would be more careful to find a good teacher, if he was likely to remain a year, or perhaps several years. The teacher, too, is more stimulated to do well. He feels that he is not a mere chance-comer for a single term, but that the school is his; and both his love of reputation and interest in his pupils, urge him to make it as good a school as he can.

For these and other reasons, we trust our towns-people will be aroused to feel the great, grievous evil of such frequent changes, and the value of permanence in teachers. Choose your teacher with great care, and when you get a really good one, keep him five, ten, yes, twenty years, and as many more as he will stay. As long as he strives after progress, his value to you will not diminish, but increase. We all recognize the importance of permanence in a High school, and in the cities its importance in every department of the schools is felt; why should we not gain as much as possible of it in the country schools?

SCHOOL-HOUSES.

But little improvement has been made in the condition of our school-houses the past year. Most of the houses in which schools are held, are very good; yet some are utterly unfit for the purposes for which they were intended.

It is cruel and unreasonable to compel children to attend school where they are obliged to sit upon rude seats hour after hour, unable to touch the floor with their feet, shivering even in their cloaks and overcoats; yet such has been the condition of some of our scholars, happily but few, during the long cold days of the past winter. Perhaps some of the parents, sitting cosily around their warm firesides at home, think the winter days were not long; but had they been in the places of their children, unable to keep warm even by huddling about the stove, they would have thought them long enough.

Were your dwelling-houses as cheerless as are some of your school-houses, how long, think you, would you allow such a condition to exist?

Many of the diseases of later years, especially that most troublesome and destructive of all diseases, consumption, have their germinant principles sown in childhood. If you would enjoy the society of your children, if you would have them become active, vigorous, healthy men and women, see to it that they are protected from the inclemency of the weather.

All children, however dull they may be, take great interest in maps and pictures, and you may make the school-room more attractive at a trifling expense by adorning the walls with them. If we duly considered how much the surroundings of a child have to do with his after-life, more attention would be paid to this important subject.

Another great want in our school-rooms is a proper supply of blackboard; the cost of procuring which is very little excuse for not providing it.

A thorough teacher will use the blackboard to advantage, not only in teaching arithmetic, but geography, grammar, and even the rudiments of reading and spelling.

THE HIGH SCHOOL.

The past year has witnessed an event of the greatest importance in the educational history of the town. A growing desire for higher opportunities of education has for some time been felt by many of the people of the town, and it may be called in part a natural result of this desire that the heart of one of our rich men was inclined to satisfy it. Our late townsman, Franklin Simonds, Esq., generously left by will twenty thousand dollars for the endowment of such a school. To this endowment his widow, Mrs. Abigail K. Simonds, subsequently added five thousand dollars. Towards the erection of the building she also gave five thousand dollars. The cost of the building was $8,992.04 and of the land on which it stands, $1,000; total, $9,992.04. Of this sum Messrs. Gilman A. Bean and Samuel H. Dow gave $2,098.52 each. George Jones, C. G. McAlpine and John E. Robertson $250 each. Reuben Clough, $20; Leonidas Harriman, $10; John C. Bean, $10; William K. Morrill, $5. Several citizens also gave work amounting to $73.75, not reckoned in the cost of the building. The land and building are thus wholly a free gift to the town; and the generosity already shown should make every citizen ready hereafter to do his full share whenever the school needs further aid.

Ground was broken for the High School building about the first of May, and through the unwearied efforts of the building committee, Messrs. Gilman A. Bean, Samuel H. Dow and William K. Morrill, it was completed in the month of November. It was dedicated December 1, 1871, and the first term opened December 4, under the instruction of Edmund C. Cole, B. A., as principal, and Miss Helen E. Gilbert as preceptress. Mr. Cole is a graduate of Bowdoin College, and Miss Gilbert of the Concord High School. The number of pupils in attendance the first term has been sixty, and the management of the school has been highly satisfactory. The establishment of such a school is an occasion for public rejoicing and thanksgiving to God, and the prayer of every good citizen should be, that it may, through all time, be a means of mental and moral elevation to the youth of this town.

We subjoin the reports of the several districts :

DISTRICT NO. 1.—DIMOND'S CORNER.

Summer term, extending from May 8 to July 16, taught by Miss Elsen S. Clough. She says : "The pupils have been very studious and respectful, and have shown their regard for the teacher and school in many ways. I think it has been a term of improvement to both teacher and scholars. The parents have shown their interest in the school." This favorable report the observation of your committee fully confirms. The school was one of the best in town.

Of the winter term, extending from October 23 to December 23, and taught by Miss Mary C. Colby, a similarly good account is to be given. The teaching was very efficient. It was obvious at the examination that an impulse had been given to study which had borne all the scholars forward. They appeared to understand their studies, and at the same time the memory had been cultivated,—as was shown especially by the long portions of geography recited. The recitation of pieces of prose and poetry was excellent, at the close of this and the preceding terms. We are glad to record that some of the fathers as well as mothers were present at the examination. When fathers give time and personal attention to the education of their children, the children have a much greater sense of the importance of study.

DISTRICT No. 2.—LOWER VILLAGE.

Summer term, extending from April 24 to June 24, taught by Miss Minnie L. Bartlett. This school has formerly suffered from a lawless spirit in one or two older boys, the very ones who should be foremost in sustaining order and setting a right example. During the past year, however, there has been but little of this difficulty. Miss Bartlett's manner of teaching is animated and intelligent, and her treatment of pupils secures their respect and affection. She is an excellent teacher.

The winter term extended from November 13 to February 2, and was taught by Miss Addie M. Sargent. The pupils were orderly and disposed to learn. Miss Sargent is very kind, faithful and persevering. She may improve by cultivating more energy in teaching. Good recitations of pieces closed the examination.

DISTRICT No. 3.—NORTH VILLAGE.

Summer term taught by Miss Augusta Wheeler, with, we think, her usual success. A good degree of thoroughness characterized her instructions in every department, and her classes in arithmetic and grammar deserve particular mention.

The winter term was commenced by Miss Ann Heath, keeping two weeks, until John George, 2d, the regular teacher, concluded his school in another part of the town. Order and stillness were marked features of this term. The examination was one of unusual interest—a large portion of the parents being present—and seemed to pass off with satisfaction to all.

DISTRICT No. 4.—SCHOODAC.

The summer term extended from May 1 to July 21, and was taught by Miss Mary J. Bates. She engaged in her work earnestly and intelligently, and the time of the school was well spent. Miss Bates has some of the best qualities of a teacher, viz: genuine interest in knowledge, and in the improvement of her pupils, and with experience we think she will win much success.

The winter term, from October 9 to December 8, was taught by Miss Emma Fifield of Franklin. We regret to say that it was not wholly successful. Ill feeling existed towards the teacher on the part of some pupils. Some of the older boys were disrespectful and impertinent, and three and four of them left school before the end of the term. Miss Fifield's great error was a somewhat contemptuous fault-finding with the scholars and with former teachers. She is capable, energetic, well educated, and really feels much interest in her pupils. She seeks to cultivate in them intelligent, independent habits of study. She is quite too good a teacher to allow her usefulness to be marred by the fault before mentioned. But why did not the parents, finding that there was trouble, visit the school and see if they could not do something for its good? Only one parent visited the school during the term. No one from the district was present at the examination. Let those in the district who value the school judge for themselves whether this is right. Parents should never be the unkind critics, but the friends, and if need be, the counsellors of the teacher; and a good teacher will be thankful for counsel in the spirit of kindness.

DISTRICT No. 5.—PUMPKIN HILL.

A fall term, commencing August 7 and ending November 3, taught by Miss Marietta Osgood. This school in the light of its prosperity consisted of eight scholars; only one or two of the number were residents of the district. This was Miss Osgood's first attempt at teaching. Our opportunity of judging of her success as a teacher was limited, as only one scholar was present at the examination, the others having left to attend school in their own district. We find the expense of instruction to have been forty cents per day to a scholar. Would it not be well for this district to unite with No. 6, thereby insuring a longer school, which would certainly be much more interesting.

DISTRICT No. 6.—BURNT HILL.

Summer term commenced May 8 and ended July 1, taught by Miss Addie M. Sargent. Miss Sargent evidently entered the school with a desire to succeed, but owing to want of interest and co-operation on the part of some that success was not attained which we should like to have seen. Those scholars who were present at the close exhibited a good degree of improvement.

Winter term commenced October 9 and closed December 2, under the instruction of Mr. John George, 2d. Mr. George won the respect and confidence of his pupils; his method of discipline in this school was worthy of emulation. The instruction was good and commendable improvement was the natural result. Much interest was shown by the parents throughout the term, and an unusual number of visits of parents was recorded, which speaks well for the future prospects of the school.

DISTRICT No. 7.—KIMBALL.

The school commenced May 15, but on account of sickness closed after two weeks. It was again in session from September 4 to Nov. 4. Teacher, Mrs. Harriet E. Buxton. The number of scholars in the district is only four, but five others attended from Joppa district. The school was orderly and studious. Much interest was shown by the pupils in geography in map-drawing, both on the board and on paper.

DISTRICT No. 8.—BURNAP.

The summer term was taught by Miss Sarah E. O. Bartlett. She is quite young and had never taught before. However, pretty good order prevailed, and the pupils made fair progress.

The fall term was taught by Miss Frank Reddington. There being a misapprehension about the time fixed for its close it was not visited at all; but the exalted character of Miss Reddington as a scholar and teacher is a sufficient guarantee that the school was wanting in none of the elements of success.

DISTRICT No. 9.—WATERLOO.

Summer term, under the instruction of Miss Addie E. Allen, commenced May 22, kept two weeks, and owing to prevalence of small-pox a vacation of three weeks ensued, when it again commenced under the charge of the same teacher and continued to August 18. This was Miss Allen's first school. She endeavored to inculcate habits of neatness and order for which she should be heartily commended. The classes in reading were drilled in a thorough and systematic manner.

Winter term, commencing Nov. 13 and ending February 23, was under the instruction of the same teacher. So far as we could see the same course of instruction was adopted during this term as in the preceding one. The teacher put forth her best efforts for the good of her scholars, but a spirit of jealousy had broken out; some of the parents wrongly allowed their children to absent themselves from school, thus occasioning a want of interest on the part of others, consequently the winter term was productive of but little real benefit.

DISTRICT No. 10.—COLLINS.

But one term (winter) and that under the supervision of Miss M. Augusta Jones. This school is so small that it is difficult to describe it; therefore we will only add, it was all a most excellent teacher could make it, for such Miss Jones is well known to be.

DISTRICT No. 11.—TORY HILL.

The summer term commenced May 15 and closed June 11, taught by Miss Clara B. Brown of Concord. Miss B. is evidently a good scholar, but lacks the faculty of imparting instruction—a very necessary qualification in order to be a successful teacher—consequently there was not that advancement made which the natural abilities of the scholars would seem to warrant.

The winter term, beginning October 16 and ending January 9, was under the instruction of one of your committee, Mr. Walter Sargent. The teacher finds no fault with the scholars. They were quiet and orderly in their deportment and manifested a desire to learn. In regard to the improvement made he begs leave to refer to the parents who were all present at the closing examination.

DISTRICT No. 12.—COUCH.

Summer term from May 15 to July 21, winter term from October 16 to November 9, both taught by Miss Isabella A. Morgan. This district well deserves its name, which was borne by seven out of ten scholars the first term, and seven out of twelve the second. Miss Morgan has now taught the school for two years, and as heretofore we commend her as being well educated, very kind, faithful, and interested in her pupils. She should strive to add to these good qualities somewhat more vivacity and force, and she will become a superior teacher. The pupils have all, according to their ages, made good proficiency. One of the older ones has entered the High school, and others are qualified to do so.

DISTRICT NO. 13.—CENTRE VILLAGE.

Higher Department. The summer term, extending from May 8 to July 26, was taught by Miss Mary C. Colby, whose success here, as it has been elsewhere, was excellent.

The winter term is still in progress, taught by Major Samuel Davis.

Lower Department. The terms extended from April 24 to August 3, and from September 12 to November 29, and were both taught by Mrs. Emma B. Quimby. She also taught the school last year, and as respects your committee's opinion of her success, it is enough to say that we wish she might teach it for twenty years to come.

DISTRICT NO. 15.—GORE.

Summer term, beginning May 15 and ending June 22, taught by Miss Annette Andrews. The interest of the school was somewhat increased by the attendance of several scholars from Sutton. The teacher appeared faithful, and evidently interested in her work.

Winter term, beginning September 4 and ending November 11, taught by the same teacher. The scholars were all quite young, the most advanced being in mental arithmetic, yet they are intelligent and proficient in their studies. Improvement commendable.

DISTRICT NO. 16.—DAVISVILLE.

The two terms extended from May 15 to June 28, and from November 16 to January 12. Miss Rhoda B. Thompson, teacher. It is always a pleasure to visit this school, for several reasons. One is that it contains an unusual proportion of older scholars, especially young men, who realize that the time thus spent in school is not lost, but doubly gained as regards their future life. Some of these we hope soon to see in the High school. Another pleasant feature in the district is that the people are united in their interest in the school, in seeking the best teachers, and in upholding the respect and authority which the teachers must have in order to succeed. That Miss Thompson served the district faithfully and well, no one need be told who knows the useful service she has before done in the schools of this town.

DISTRICT NO. 17.—MILLVILLE.

Summer term, commencing May 15 and ending July 14, taught by Miss Anna M. Pierce of Bradford. At our first visit, found the teacher and scholars interested in their work, and the closing examination showed that a good degree of progress had been attained. The many citizens who were present at the close of the term indicated their regard for the success of the school. Such an interest manifested by parents serves to encourage and lighten the labors of the teacher and render the school of much more practical utility than can be attained where they exhibit an attitude of apathy and indifference.

Winter term, commencing December 4 and ending February 17, taught by Fred. M. Colby. The reputation of Mr. Colby for scholarship and industry is unimpeachable. The discipline of the school was inflexibly strict and the teacher labored hard for the benefit of his pupils, and with good results. A thoroughness in recitations was manifested which is seldom surpassed, consequently a marked improvement was made, especially in the smaller classes. With additional experience he will become one of our most successful teachers.

DISTRICT NO. 18.—COLLEGE.

Summer, taught by Miss Ida Blood, of Bradford. Miss Blood is quite young and this was her first term; but it was a success in almost every particular. She is a young lady of marked promise as a scholar, and we have no doubt is destined to become one of our very best teachers.

The winter term was taught by Miss Kate Presby, of Bradford, and well did she keep up the interest manifested during the former one. The district, we think, suffered no detriment by a change of teachers. The pupils sustained themselves handsomely at the last examination.

DISTRICT NO. 19.—LIBERTY UNION.

Only one term, and that in the winter, taught by Mr. O. H. Newton. He earned his wages. He was mainly successful, having an intelligible way of imparting instruction. Parsing was well attended to; analysis a little neglected. The teacher reports the school-house unfit for the purpose for which it is used.

DISTRICT NO. 20—ROBY'S CORNER.

Summer term, commenced May 8, and ending June 18, taught by Miss Frank Reddington, an experienced teacher. This school, although quite small in numbers, contains some excellent scholars, whose examination was creditable to themselves and their teacher. We infer that the Prudential Committee of this district think with us that short terms of school, under good teachers, are much more beneficial than longer terms under poorer ones.

Winter term, commencing September 25 and ending October 28, taught by Miss Ida Frank Barnard, of Sutton. At our first visit the school appeared well. Owing to a misunderstanding in regard to its close we failed to visit a second time, but we have no doubt considerable progress was attained.

DISTRICT NO. 21.—HOWE.

There was but one term (winter) in this district, of about fourteen weeks, taught by Miss Marilla E. Howlet. Our visits to this school were attended with much satisfaction, for it was manifest that teacher and pupils had labored with mutual efforts to promote the same objects. Order was good and habits of study greatly improved during the term. But the pupils in this district will not do their whole duty until they give more attention to geography and grammar.

DISTRICT NO. 22.—NEWMARKET.

One term (fall), taught by Miss Augusta Wheeler. On our first visit the school seemed to be well regulated and the pupils progressing under good instruction. We are unable to report the actual progress made, as on our second visit we found no school in session—the teacher having been obliged to abandon it in consequence of sickness. We trust, however, the term was not without a tolerable degree of profit.

DISTRICT NO. 24.—JOPPA.

Only one term, extending from October 30 to December 15, taught by Miss H. Paulina Heath, of Contoocook. The only regret we have to express in regard to this school is the shortness of its continuance. Miss Heath proved herself one of the best teachers in town, and her services should be secured by some district for the coming year. She worked hard, is animated and pleasant in her way of teaching, and was careful about some things which are too often neglected, such as correct pronunciation in reading and reciting, and good manners in the school-room. Seven of the scholars were not absent one half day, and there was not one instance of tardiness. Scholars, you have done well.

Respectfully submitted,
